

ABSTRACT

A method and system are disclosed that improve the efficiency of a time division duplex communication system. The uplink transmission slots of a plurality of mobile stations are arranged in an order so as to take advantage of the short propagation delay to the closest mobile stations, thereby advantageously resulting in a time division duplex guard time which is potentially independent of cell size.